

LISTENING

#01

1 - In this lesson, you will practice listening to a conversation between a passenger and an airline agent. You'll learn useful travel vocabulary and answer questions to check your understanding of the check-in process.

Travel English: The Check-In Process

1 - Where is Mrs. Hansen heading today?

2 - Is Mrs. Hansen checking in any bags? (If yes, how many?)

3 - Where was Mrs. Hansen instructed to place her bags?

4 - How many boarding passes did Mrs. Hansen receive from the agent?

5 - True or False: Mrs. Hansen was asked to place her bag on the scale.

6 - How did the agent greet the passenger?

7 - What is the passenger's name?

8 - Is the passenger checking in any bags? (Answer Yes or No, with details if possible.)

9 - What are some valid types of picture ID when traveling? (List at least two.)

10 - Did the agent print the boarding pass or ask the lady to do it herself?

Welcome Aboard

After a long transatlantic flight, Cassandra stepped into the bustling arrivals hall of Meridian International Airport. The air was thick with the murmur of conversations in multiple languages, the rhythmic clatter of rolling suitcases, and the occasional call for a missing passenger. Her eyes scanned the overhead signs, searching for the check-in counters for her connecting domestic flight.

At the information desk, a sharply dressed attendant informed her that she would need to re-check her luggage due to customs regulations. This came as an unwelcome surprise; she had assumed her suitcase would be transferred automatically. Navigating the labyrinthine layout of the terminal, she queued at the self-service kiosks, where a screen prompted her to confirm her identity, select her seat, and declare any prohibited items.

With her boarding pass finally in hand, Cassandra glanced at the departures board. Her gate was on the far side of the airport, and boarding would begin in just forty minutes. She considered stopping for a coffee but decided against it; the last thing she wanted was to hear her name over the loudspeaker for a final boarding call. Instead, she followed the moving walkway, mentally rehearsing the security questions she might face before entering the restricted area.

COMPREHENSION QUESTIONS

1 - What procedure did Cassandra need to complete before boarding her connecting flight?

2 - Why did Cassandra avoid stopping for a coffee?

3 - What did the self-service kiosk require Cassandra to do?

4 - How much time remained before boarding when Cassandra checked the departures board?

5 - Describe the atmosphere in the arrivals hall using details from the text.
