

Conversation

#14

CONVERSATION

SMARTPHONE NEGOTIATION – BUYING & SELLING UNDER PRESSURE

Teacher's note: get 8 pieces of papers, number them 1 to 8 and have each student draw one, to see which character they will be. This activity focuses on negotiation language, persuasion, concessions, and decision-making.

It's Tuesday afternoon at TechLink Distribuidora S.A., São Paulo.

A corporate client wants to buy 1,000 smartphones for a nationwide rollout.

Both sides are under pressure:

- the seller wants margin and volume
- the buyer wants price, warranty, and fast delivery

A competitor is in the market, deadlines are tight, and one wrong move can kill the deal.

Everyone around the table knows this negotiation will decide revenue, partnership, and reputation.

Commercial Data

Item	Offer A (This Deal)	Competitor Offer
Quantity	1,000 units	1,000 units
Unit price	R$ 2,150	R$ 2,050
Production cost	R$ 1,650	—
Gross margin	23%	—
Delivery time	14 days	21 days
Warranty	12 months	6 months
Payment terms	30 days	15 days
Stock availability	Limited	Available

Student Coaching – How to Use the Data

- Use numbers to justify your position
- Compare your offer with the competitor's
- Ask for concessions before giving one
- Protect at least one non-negotiable item

Characters

1. Lucas – Sales Director (Seller Lead)

"I walk into this meeting knowing this deal can close our quarter. The margin is good, but only if we don't panic. I can give something, but not everything.

If I lose price and payment terms, this deal stops making sense.

My goal is clear: close the deal without killing profitability."

2. Mariana – Procurement Manager (Buyer Lead)

“I’m responsible for this purchase, and my boss expects a better price. The competitor is cheaper, and everyone knows it.

I don’t want promises — I want guarantees. If this deal doesn’t improve, I can walk away.

I need leverage, and I plan to use it.”

3. Diego – Sales Executive

“I believe we’re offering more value than the competitor. Delivery time and warranty matter, not just price.

Still, I feel the pressure. If we don’t move fast, this opportunity disappears.

I’ll push value, not discounts.”

4. Sofia – Buyer’s Operations Manager

“I don’t care about the story — I care about execution.

If delivery fails, operations takes the blame.

Fourteen days sounds good, but I want certainty. Fast delivery is more important than small discounts.

I’ll support the deal only if it’s realistic.”

5. Carla – Finance Analyst (Seller Side)

“I’m here to protect margin and cash flow. A 23% margin is healthy — losing that sets a bad precedent.

Long payment terms worry me. Discounts today create problems tomorrow.

I will question every concession.”

6. Rafael – Legal & Compliance Advisor

“I listen more than I speak, but when I do, it matters.

Warranty, penalties, and contract clauses protect both sides.

A rushed deal often hides legal risks. I want everything clear before signatures.

If something is vague, I’ll stop the deal.”

7. João – Product Specialist

“I know this smartphone inside out. It’s reliable, updated, and competitive.

Price matters, but product failure costs more.

I want the buyer to trust what they’re buying. If needed, I’ll defend the product strongly.”

8. Ana – Negotiation Observer / Assistant

“I take notes and watch reactions. Who hesitates, who pressures, who concedes too fast.

At the end, I’ll summarize what was agreed — or what failed.

If nothing is clear, the deal is not ready.”

#14

Full name: _____

Theme: Negotiation and Decision-Making

Guide your writing:

1. Describe the negotiation context and offers.
2. Explain the main conflict or disagreement.
3. Describe the final decision and why it was made.
4. End with one lesson about negotiation or compromise.

Length: 120–150 words

Tone: professional and objective

Title: _____

[illegible]