READING COMPREHENSION

On a warm Friday morning, Julia arrived at Luz Station in São Paulo with a backpack on her shoulders. She was planning a weekend trip to visit her cousin in Campinas. The station was busy with travelers rushing to platforms, the sound of announcements echoing through the hall.

Julia walked up to the ticket counter. A clerk behind the glass looked up and asked, “Good morning. Where are you headed?”

“To Campinas, please. What’s the next departure?” Julia replied.

The clerk checked the screen. “There’s a train leaving at 10:30 a.m. You can choose between a regular seat or a premium one with extra space.”

Julia thought for a moment. “How much is the difference?”

“Regular is 40 reais, premium is 65,” the clerk explained.

She decided on the premium ticket since the ride would take over an hour and she wanted to be comfortable. “I’ll take the premium, please.”

The clerk printed the ticket and handed it to her with a smile. “Platform 3. Boarding begins in fifteen minutes.”

With ticket in hand, Julia walked toward the platform, feeling both excited and relaxed. Traveling by train wasn’t just about getting from one place to another—it was part of the adventure.
