

LISTENING

#15

1 – Listen to a conversation between a student and his professor.

Answer the questions to understand why the student is late, what excuses they give, and how the teacher responds.

Student Excuses

1 - Why does the student say he missed the test?

2- Who tells Mrs. Smith that the student was still in bed?

3 - What excuse does the student use after being caught lying about the bus?

4 - What does Mrs. Smith say about the alarm clock excuse?

5 - What is the program's policy about missing a test for unexcused reasons?

6 – What does the teacher mean when she says, “You’re playing the victim”?

(Mark the correct answer)

- a) He is being honest about his mistake
- b) He is blaming others instead of himself
- c) He is taking full responsibility

7- What does the student say will happen if he fails the class?

8 - What is the main lesson the student should learn from this conversation?

Full Name _____

READING COMPREHENSION

Taking Responsibility

Ella always had trouble being on time. She often came late to school, forgot her alarms, lost track of time, or got distracted at home. One Monday morning, she saw that she missed her math test again. Feeling nervous and a little embarrassed, she ran to the classroom, hoping her teacher would let her take the test.

Her teacher, Mr. Lopez, was already checking the test with other students. He looked at Ella with a calm but serious face and asked why she was late. Ella quickly said that her bus was late and that she did not mean to miss the test. Mr. Lopez listened carefully and asked a few more questions about her morning. He found out that she was not telling the whole truth.

After talking for a little while, Ella started to understand that excuses could not fix the problem. Mr. Lopez told her that everyone is responsible for what they do, and that avoiding responsibility only causes more problems. He also said that learning from mistakes is better than trying to avoid them, and that it is important to be honest, even when it is hard.

By the end of the week, Ella started using more alarms, checking the bus schedule, and keeping a small notebook to remember important things. She understood that taking responsibility helped her avoid problems and made people trust her more. Even small changes in her habits made her feel more confident and ready for each day.

Comprehension Questions

1. Why was Ella late to her math test?

2. How did Mr. Lopez find out that Ella was not completely truthful?

3. What advice did Mr. Lopez give Ella about responsibility?

4. What can you do to be on time and responsible at school or work?

5. Can you think of a time when being responsible helped you? What happened?
